

Sinclair stations use public airwaves free of charge, and are required by law to serve the public interest. One-sided programs, like "Stolen Honor", do not serve the public interest without a clear partisan or non-partisan disclaimer. Our democracy is built upon Free Press. I am alarmed that this Station Group has decided to air "Stolen Honor," without counterbalanced programming like "Going Upriver" shortly after.

It has been a relief that Fox's "Fair and Balanced" political coverage has been "outed" with its rightful Republican partisan position. If we are to have media coverage that is partisan, I would like that Public is made aware of such positions. Dan Rather of CBS made it rather clear where his democratic politics lay. And for his mistake, he issued a public apology.

I would appreciate a disclaimer issued by Sinclair Group that their decision to air "Stolen Honor" is a reflection of a Republican political position to the debate on the election of our next president.
